Card Sort Report

       The feedback I got back from my group card sort was that some of the my cards people felt were either unnecessary and may have felt redundant. The card Education got taken out of the grouping, because both participants felt that it was already covered with the Resume card and didn't need to be mentioned twice. Also, the participants felt that the cards about mentioning my past roles and team members could be one card and they felt that listing my past team members is a good thing, but as long as I don't go any deeper than mentioning their roles it fine. Finally, I noticed that the participants grouped most of my content into the Programming/Game experience section, so I might have to split that group two sections. Other than that people stated that all the cards that I listed did correlate with the topic of the website and could be put into a section.
